

Do I need to worry about the compile warning "Note: MYPROG.java uses unchecked or unsafe operations?"

In isCOBOL you may get a Java note saying something similar to

"... uses unchecked or unsafe operations."

This warning is displayed when you execute code which the Java compiler considers to be lacking in error-checking, or potentially unsafe in some way.

This is just a warning though, and won't stop your code from compiling and running.

1. Ignore this warning.
2. Upgrade to a newer isCOBOL version, and report the error to support if it still occurs.
